V is for Vauchoux

During our summer cycling season we had a very kind invitation from the Vauchoux Department to join a fourteen sponsored programme, highlighting the treasures of that part of the world. For spring holidays and adventures on two wheels I was a great experience for us, sharing time with some really friendly and knowledgeable local people, looking for Vauchoux partners who would be keen to spread or enhance their coverage in the western area of Provence.

Though we already deliver tours in the Vauchoux, Mont Ventoux being a great example, it was a great opportunity to learn more about this part of Provence and, we will certainly be looking to add more featured tours to our website to take advantage of our new third life September.

It huge thanks to those of us at all Vauchoux Provence Activity and, to everyone we shared time with during the programme.

Cycling Poetry

As a small thing to try to all our Portland, Oregon natives this summer, a poem from William Pittman, named Post Laureate of Oregon in 1975.

Madre Kluge as Mr. Billie

I know, and the mountain takes hair countenance cutes on these winter ridges only the snails are visible to him, their color green and turned brown alert, to their ultimate meaning shales;

And I have thought (maybe alone on my bike, quietly on a cold evening gathering clouds, "maybe") the signifier of our life, its current unknown as these mountains, the great one on one.

Orators of our small world we are here to find that Mr. Minard exists by: great views and warmth of air to bring the large world to heart, and I hear in the chink a chuckle to hear
